

LEARNING STRATEGIES 25

LDC2599

3 Credit Course

Course Overview	The aim of Learning Strategies is to encourage and support student success in response to their learning needs, courses of study and teaching practices. Learning Strategies facilitates teaching and learning situations and conversations that promote self-advocacy and independence. Learning Strategies is designed to augment other teaching and learning opportunities in supporting students' pursuit of academic achievement, responsible citizenship and personal well-being. It is founded on the belief that all students can thrive when provided with learning activities that develop self-advocacy, resiliency, communication skills, problem solving skills, and ethical understandings. It is intended to provide additional support for students to become literate and successful lifelong learners, dedicated to achieving at their highest levels and committed to living well as citizens.
